Indian Futures and the Community

Our amazing trustee Alanna has been running a series of workshops at Manor Road Gym on the back of the 'Memories of an Indian Future' exhibition, inviting members of the local community to learn about rural South India and the work of Indian Futures.

The children's group had a workshop, 'South Indian Crops', in which they were challenged to guess the names of fruits described to them by the environmental conditions they grow in. Following this, they collectively made a mural of the fruit and vegetables and Alanna wrote and read a fun poem about it to the children!

The regular art group are hand-stitching colourful patchwork pieces which will be sewn on to pyjamas, clothing items derived from India. The next workshop, in September, will be creating a large mandala piece from all the children's artwork.
